About the Project

Service Mobilization through Alternative and Relevant Technology (SMART) is the newly formulated Extension and Community Services program of the ASU-College of Industrial Technology. The former extension program of the college, Transformation through Education, Community Outreach and Social Service-Response Against Poverty (TECOSS-RAP) which is a completed extension program is proposed to be renewed as one of the future projects, thus, the title SMART. As a proposed extension and community outreach program, SMART was conceptualized to emphasize the main target of the ASU-CIT ECS towards the improvement of the quality of life of its client community which is Barangay Pook, Kalibo, Aklan. Through this proposed scheme, the mandated curricular programs of the ASU-CIT on vocational and technological education will be transmitted, generated and transferred to the clients to guide these towards the development and enhancement of their capabilities for their empowerment. The skills, competencies and commitment to involve in community service of the faculty, the students and personnel of the ASU-CIT along with adequate administrative support and resources will answer the call for societal mobilization of the community area of responsibility and thus serve the responsive clientele. Manpower and technical support to this extension program and relevant projects will be provided and sourced through the Extension and Community Services unit. Faculty, students and officials of the college are the initiators and will play important roles in the implementation of the program. Part of the funding and technical expertise will be sourced from external linkages of the university and the college as well as from concerned local government units.
